

THIEVES STRIKE SIX PLACES

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

A LOCAL news item brings me the information that Hope youngsters being taught state history for the purpose of the Arkansas Centennial are banded together under the name "Wonder State Club." I know that Wonder State has been Arkansas' official designation ever since the late Governor Charles H. Brough persuaded the legislature to adopt it during the World war years—but the fact is, Arkansas is down on the pages of all encyclopedias, on the pages of her own authentic histories, and in the tradition of her people, as the Bear State; and nothing can or should change it.

Last year the average daily attendance exceeded 500. During several days the attendance went over 100.

Mrs. Hammons announced that the Southern and Community Ice companies would furnish the water supply for children, each company donating 100 pounds of ice each day.

The truck was driven by R. A. Whalley of Hope and was occupied by Roy and D. V. Whalley, brothers, riding in the cab of the truck.

Baron Aloisi Reveals Mussolini's Demands in League Speech

MARCH ON CAPITAL

Addis Ababa Doomed as Invaders Strike Within Few Miles of It

GENEVA, Switzerland—(Copyright Associated Press)—Premier Mussolini, officially and frankly showing his hand, demanded virtually all of Ethiopia for Italy as the price of East African peace Monday, after the League of Nations council had received a report on the failure of conciliation.

Through a speech made by Baron Aloisi to the council, Mussolini declared that any armistice must provide for assurance against the rearmament of Emperor Selassie's domain.

"In other words, it means practical occupation of the enemy territory in its entirety," said Aloisi.

Last Stand of Ethiopia

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia—(AP)—Crown Prince Asfa Woson rallied Ethiopian troops south of Dessye Sunday in a desperate effort to stem the Italian advance. Fresh troops from remote provinces in the interior were ordered northward to reinforce Emperor Haile Selassie's retreating army.

It was disclosed that removal of the seat of the government to a less exposed site was discussed at a secret meeting of chiefs and officials Saturday but no decision was announced.

At the last minute a Belgian military commission, which resigned, postponed its departure for Djibouti, French Somaliland. The nature of the Belgians' dispute with the government was not disclosed.

Written instructions as to what to do in case of danger were issued by some legations as there was an unconfirmed report that the Italians had occupied Jijiga.

MOGADISCIO, Italian Somaliland—(AP)—The left wing of Italy's Southern army drove toward Harar Sunday after reporting defeat of 10,000 Ethiopians in four days of bitter fighting near Birent.

The enemy was engaged by an Italian division under General Nasi, reinforced with native troops.

Where Italy Broke Ethiopia

Less than seven months after Italy's legions began their invasion of Ethiopia, Emperor Haile Selassie's black warriors have been cut down and driven back by Mussolini's blackshirts, native Askaris, and bomb-laden planes, until Italy's grip closes on Ethiopia's capital, Addis Ababa, bringing complete victory near. This map shows important dates and extent of the Italian advances as Mussolini insists that peace shall be made only on his own terms. Arrows indicate the path of Italy's attacks the shaded area, the territory occupied. At the right is Crown Prince Asfa Woson, who Rome reports intimate, may be Italy's puppet emperor if his father, Haile Selassie, abdicates.

Jews, Arabs Clash in Palestine War

15 Reported Slain in Outbreak Between Rival Racial Cities

JAFFA, Palestine—(AP)—Five additional deaths of Jews, bringing the total killed in two days to 15, were reported by correspondents of the Palestine news agency Monday.

The new killings were in a clash between Arabs and Jews between Jaffa and Tel-Aviv.

A Racial War

JAFFA, Palestine—(AP)—Nine Jews and two Arabs were reported Sunday night to have been killed in rioting in which Arabs and Jews fought against each other and with police. Many cars were burned outside this predominantly Arab city, which borders the all-Jewish city of Tel-Aviv.

The outbreaks, in which 65 Jews and 15 Arabs were injured, led to imposition of a 19-hour curfew in Jaffa and Tel-Aviv.

(The Jewish Telegraphic Agency reported that mobs of Arabs and Jews rampaged Sunday night on opposite sides of the border between the two cities, and that police were stationed between them to prevent further disorders. The agency said that Jewish shops in Jaffa were closed and police halted all traffic, even pedestrian, between the two cities.)

(The two slain Arabs, the Jewish Telegraphic Agency said, were reported to have been shot by British police in self-defense, while most of the Jewish injured bore knife wounds.)

(The agency asserted, the demonstrations were an outgrowth of resentment over the slaying of two Arab laborers in Neged, near the Jewish colony of Petach Tikvah, following a holdup by Arab brigands in which a Jew was killed and two Jews were wounded.)

Rescuers Falter at Miners' Tomb

Struggle Desperately to Break Through to 2 Living Prisoners

MOOSE RIVER, Nova Scotia—(Copyright Associated Press)—With three trapped men, two living and one dead, only a few feet away, tired rescue workers reported Monday afternoon that they feared they had miscalculated the position of the gold mine chamber toward which they are digging.

They started immediately to make a cross cut from their dangerous gallery in an effort to tap the tomb of living men.

Dr. D. E. Robertson, one of the two men still alive after a week's imprisonment in the gold mine, reported that he and his companion could hold out for at least 12 hours longer.

Mother Killed, Daughter Injured

Their Automobile Is Wrecked on Highway 71 Near Fayetteville

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark.—(AP)—Mrs. Pearl Agnew was killed and her daughter, Miss Louise Agnew, seriously injured Monday when their automobile was wrecked near Greenland on highway No. 71.

The two were returning to their home here from Little Rock.

A front window of the Jett Williams liquor store was crashed early Sunday morning. About a dozen pints and half pints of whiskey in the display window were spilled.

Second in 10 Days

It was the second time the liquor store has been entered in the last 10 days. Approximately $150 worth of whiskey was stolen in the first robbery, in which two men are held in jail in connection with the theft.

The latest robbery is believed to have been committed shortly after 5 a. m. Sunday. Night policemen said they checked the store around 5 o'clock Sunday morning.

A lock on the front door of Gulf Refining distributing station was broken some time Saturday night. Nothing in the office was disturbed. The company keeps no safe in the building.

The fifth place to be entered was the W. R. Farrell Blacksmith, where a number of tools were missing. The shop is located on South Hazel street.

Obtain Entrance to 5 in Hope; Fire on Blevins Officer

Carload of Men Interrupted at Home of Blevins Bank Cashier

A BATTLE ON ROAD

Meanwhile, Robbers Enter 5 Hope Business Places in Week-End

A band of thieves and sadists made new forays late Saturday night on five Hope business houses and the Blevins home of P. C. Stephens, cashier of the Bank of Blevins.

The combined loot and damage done by the crashing of windows and doors, however will not exceed $150, as previously disclosed Monday. Police Monday had made no arrests.

A car loaded with men drove up to the home of Mr. Stephens at midnight Saturday. Two men got out and knocked on the door. Mr. Stephens was aroused from bed.

He said he believed the men to be "drunk or up to some mischief." Instead of answering the knock at the door, Stephens said that he stepped to the telephone and called the Blevins night marshal.

Gunfire Begins

As the marshal approached, the two men jumped into the car and sped away. The officer fired a half dozen times and then chased the automobile.

State Ranger J. H. Sewell was notified at Prescott and immediately left for Blevins. Sewell encountered the automobile on the Blevins-Prescott road, attempted to stop it but failed. Two shots were fired at the speeding car which disappeared in a north-eastern direction.

Ranger Sewell theorized that the men had gone to the home of Mr. Stephens in an attempt to force him to open the Blevins bank. The automobile was described as a late-colored Ford V-8. The auto was thought to have been hit by gunfire. The car was believed occupied by four or five men.

5 Places Entered

In Hope robbers struck in five different places late Saturday night and early Sunday morning. Establishments entered were:

Hope Feed Company, West Third street.

Southern Grain & Produce Co., South Louisiana street.

Jett Williams liquor store, South Walnut street.

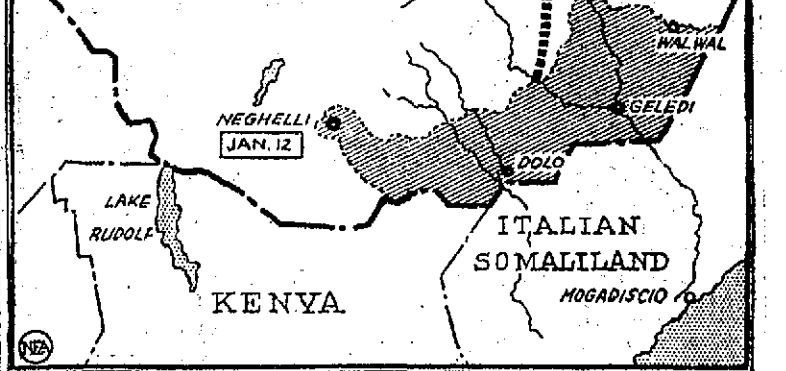

Gulf Refining Co., South Elm and Sixth streets.

W. R. Farrell Blacksmith shop, South Hazel street.

Robbers entered the safe of Hope Feed company after prying off a lock on the front door. No money had been left in the safe. All its contents were dumped on the floor. Office files were ransacked, but a check-up Monday showed nothing missing. The robbers left through a rear door.

At Southern Grain & Produce Co. the robbers pried a lock off the front door, knocked the knob off, the safe but failed to penetrate to the money vault. Nothing else was disturbed. A company official said that it appeared that the robbers were only after money.

Your Baby's Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Since, during the period of child bearing, two individuals must be fed through one mouth, it is important that the prospective mother get her full complement of proteins, carbohydrates, and mineral substances daily, and that she avoid excess of habits that might impair the growth of the baby.

In many parts of the country, for instance, the water lacks iodine. As a result, the vegetable and animal foods developed in these parts also will lack this substance. Even table salt, which used to contain much iodine, now has been refined free of the element.

To make up for this lack of an important mineral, iodized salt should be used, or the doctor may prescribe iodine in the form of tablets. Iodine also may be obtained in sea food.

The prospective mother, however, does not need extra amounts of iodized salt. What she gets through the usual seasoning of her food probably is sufficient.

Alcohol should be avoided altogether, and cigarettes should be smoked in moderation.

During the many months many women suffer from nausea or vomiting, or both. A good way to control this difficulty is to replace the regular three-meals daily with a small amount of solid food every 2½ hours.

Water may be taken with meals, not between them.

The following diet has been suggested as typical for the early months:

Before rising:
Crackers, or dry toast.

Breakfast, one-half hour later:
Orange, grapefruit, stewed prunes or apricots cereal with cream and sugar; one soft-boiled egg; thin buttered toast (with unsalted butter); milk, cocoa, weak tea or coffee with sugar.

10 a. m.:
Glass of milk with crackers (graham, nabisco, oatmeal, etc.).

Lunch:
Cup of cream of celery, asparagus, spinach or potato soup; soup crackers; salad of lettuce, tomato, endive, etc., with sugar and few drops of lemon; whole wheat bread or toast, buttered; ice cream, water ices, or custard.

4 p. m.:
Milk, cocoa, chocolate or weak tea; small piece of cake, crackers, or wafers.

Dinner:
Cup of bouillon or vegetable soup, especially tomato; soup crackers; small lamb chop, broiled steak, or veal chop, well done; baked potato, mashed potatoes, or carrots; thin bread, or toast, buttered; lettuce or tomato salad; ice cream or water ices.

Bedtime:
Glass of hot milk, chocolate, or malted milk; graham or oatmeal crackers.

If a woman finds that certain foods disagree with her, they may be eliminated for a while.

A pretty little tea room, she ordered the ice cream.

The grandmother, being a considerably wiser woman than her daughter, spoke suddenly.

"Sally, why do you order ice cream when you are with me, and puddings when your mother is along?"

Grandma Takes a Hand
Sally hesitated. Her mother was right, of course. Being her mother, she had to be. Yet, her grandmother was her mother's mother, so she could be right, too, and her grandmother thought that ice cream was a nice dessert.

"My mother says that ice cream isn't good for me," Sally answered slowly. "Stuff and nonsense. Do you even have to eat what she selects?"

"Yes," Sally answered meekly, but her grandmother caught the mischievous look in her eyes.

"Sally, do you like that dress?"

"No, but my mother said—"

"Yes, yes of course, Sally. It's a very pretty dress."

The grandmother suddenly realized that she might be inciting a revolt in the child, which would be unfortunate. She was a sensible woman who knew that she must carry the combat to the mother.

She did. With great success. Sally's mother hadn't realized that she was breaking her child's independence by refusing to let her make her own small choices. One year later, when Sally went to the library, she chose her own books. They were wise choices because her mother had learned to direct, tactfully—but silently!

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

It takes a poet to translate a poet. If you undertake to put Villon, let us say, into English, you must be just about as fine a poet as Villon was—or your translation won't measure up to the original. Which is why the number of truly excellent translations of poetry are exceedingly rare.

All this is by way of preface to the news that Baudelaire's great poetry has at last been given a really noteworthy rendering into English verse.

The translators are Edna St. Vincent Millay and George Dillon, and their version of "Flowers of Evil" (Harcourt Brace) is something to cheer over.

Miss Millay contributes a preface, explaining in detail the exact nature of the difficulties that await a translator of poetry; and this preface, by the way, contributes very largely to the value of the book. The poems themselves are admirably rendered and give you a fine opportunity to become familiar with one of the greatest of French poets.

Poetry-lovers will also be glad to learn that revised, up-to-date editions are now available of those two fine anthologies of modern verse, "Modern American Poetry" and "Modern British Poetry" (Harcourt Brace; $3.50 each). Louis Untermeyer, the editor, has made his selections with considerable taste and has covered a remarkably broad field.

Not the least valuable part of these books are the critical notes in which Mr. Untermeyer discusses the work of each poet represented. Altogether, no one who enjoys good poetry can well afford to leave these books off his shelves.

Recent Tax on Birds

NANKING—(AP)—Millions of Chinese men are grubbing over an economist's scheme to raise money for the purchase of man-made flying contraptions by a tax on pet birds.

In almost any other place in the world such a levy would raise little opposition and less cash. But in eastern China a tax on pet birds practically amounts to a per capita tax on adult males, for few are the men who do not own songsters.

Until recently, the bird cage and the umbrella were distinguishing marks of the Chinese soldier moving up to the front.

The Chinese submits with a minimum of grumbling to an assortment of taxes. But makes his birds taxable property and his usual indifference to government decrees change into sullen resentment.

Wheat was poured into boxes between walls to keep it secure from raiding soldiers during the Civil war. When needed for grinding, a hole was bored in the bottom of the wall and enough wheat removed.

MEET HERE TODAY

TOBY RYAN, 19, is a photographic model, posing for photographs to be used in advertisements. Unknown to her, she is chosen as "The Hillyer Soap Girl."

Toby shares an apartment with HARRIET HOLM, another model, engaged to marry CLYDE SABIN, whom Toby distrusts.

Wealthy TIM JAMIESON shows Toby with attentions for a time and then seems to forget her. Toby's oldest friend is BILL BRANDT, advertising salesman. She is fond of him but has never thought of him romantically.

JAY HILLYER, president of the Hillyer Soap Company, sees Toby posing for some photographs. He takes her to dinner and later she has frequent engagements with him.

Clyde Sabin marries a wealthy widow, and Harriet, heart-broken, attempts suicide. She recovers and later goes to the country for a rest.

Toby goes to dinner with Hillyer and he tells her about his youthful marriage, his wife's death, and his recent discovery that he has a daughter.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXXV

TOBY'S eyes searched Hillyer's. "You mean," she said, "that it's some one I know? She's your daughter, and you've only just found out about it? She doesn't know it, either?"

"No," Hillyer said, "she doesn't know either. I suppose it will be a shock to her." He smiled. "How do you suppose she's going to take it? What do you think of me as a father, anyhow? Think I'll make the grade?"

"I don't know why not. I think you'd make a wonderful father."

He was silent a moment, his eyes directly on hers. "Do you really mean that, Toby?"

"I certainly do. But where is she, and when am I going to see her? I'm terribly excited about all this. Did you say I know her?"

"Yes, you know her. Very well. I'll tell you her name a little later. You've heard my life story, Toby—or most of it. The rest can be told in a few words. Since there seemed to be nothing else to do, I went to work to make money. The Hillyer Soap Company was a small concern when my father owned it; I've made it bigger."

"But we've been talking about my affairs all evening. Now won't you tell me about yourself?"

She smiled. "There's nothing to tell. You know that I used to live with my aunt in Jackson Heights. When she died I had to leave school and start earning a living."

"But your parents. What about them?"

"I don't know much about them," Toby said soberly. "I wish I did. Aunt Gen never seemed to want to talk about them. I've wondered so many times what my mother was like and wished that I knew some one who used to know her. It's strange, isn't it? Her name was Mary, too. It was a pretty name, I think—Mary Fern."

"A very pretty name," Hillyer agreed. "And what about your father?"

"ALL I know about him is that he was Aunt Gen's brother. My father and mother both died when I was so small I don't remember anything about them at all. I have a picture of my mother, though. It's in a locket."

"A picture?" Hillyer asked. From a pocket he took an old-fashioned, yellow gold watch and snapped the case open. He held it toward Toby. "Was the picture," he said, "like this?"

"Why—why—?" She stared up at him. "That's my mother's picture," she exclaimed. "Where did you get it?"

Her hand lay on the table. Hillyer covered it with his own. "She gave it to me," he said gently. "Toby, my dear, your aunt evidently didn't want you to know the truth about your parents. She changed the story. Don't you understand what I've been trying all evening to tell you? You're the daughter I've found, Toby. You!"

"Yes, I'm your daughter?"

"Yes, Toby. I've had detectives at work for weeks—ever since I first suspected the truth. They've pieced together the whole story; all the legal documents are in my office. Toby, you said a while ago that you wouldn't mind having me for a father. Do you still mean it?"

She could not speak—not for a few moments. She was smiling, yet her eyes were filled with tears.

"My father," she said, almost in a whisper. "My own, real father—!"

Hillyer drew out a handkerchief and sneezed. His eyes, too, were suddenly suspiciously moist.

"And my Toby," he added. "But how did you know? How did you ever find out? Oh, I want to know all about it—?"

SHE had to hear the whole story, then, from the beginning. And the beginning was the day weeks before when a dozen photographs were laid on Jay Hillyer's desk—photographs of models from whom the "Hillyer Soap Girl" was to be selected.

"It wasn't your photograph—not at first—that decided the question," he told her. "It was your name. I was curious about a girl whose name was Toby. You see, it happens to be my name. Jay T. Hillyer. The T. is for Tobias and it was my grandfather's name. I was 'Toby' as a boy and that is what your mother called me. Later when I went into business I thought Jay was more dignified so I took to using it instead. It's the name I've used for 20 years now."

"Your mother gave you my name, and it was that that led to my finding you. Your mother—and my Mary—bringing us together, dear, after all these years. You see, your aunt misled you when she said you were her brother's child. I suppose she did it because she thought, as she had said so often, that the annulled marriage was a disgrace. She didn't want any connection with the Hillyer name, so she called you Toby Ryan. Your mother's name was Mary Fern—Mary Fern Ryan. That was before I changed it to Mary Fern Hillyer. There's a record of your christening among the papers I've gotten together. I'll get them all out and show them to you in a day or so.

"Do you remember the afternoon I walked into Duryea's studio when you were posing for a photograph? You had on a blue dress with a long, full skirt and ruffles. You can't imagine the shock it gave me. Your mother wore a dress like that years ago. Oh, I suppose you would see differences, but the dress you wore looked to me exactly like your mother's. You looked amazingly like her."

"I asked you to have dinner with me that night. After I'd talked to you, I made up my mind that I had to know more about it. I had to find out who you were and where you came from."

"Next morning I got in touch with a private detective agency and put them to work. They pieced back the facts—but it took time. You see, trying to find your mother, I had no clues to work with, but tracing your story was simpler. After a while when we were able to put the two stories together, the jig-saw puzzle began to show a pattern."

"AND all this time," Toby said reproachfully, "you've known and never even given me a hint!"

"How could I until I was sure? That's why I went away on this trip. To establish the truth of the last link in the proof. I was able to do that."

Toby shook her head. "You can't know what it means to me," she said. "To have a father—a real father of my own after these years when I haven't had anyone!"

"Don't forget, Toby, that I've found out what it's like to have a daughter—after all these years when I've had nobody either. My parents are dead now. The breach that developed between us as a result of my broken marriage was never healed. I'm sorry to say, I've been alone for a long while, Toby."

She smiled and her eyes glistened mistily. "You asked what I thought of you as a father, didn't you? I hope that, as a daughter, you're going to find me acceptable."

"As a daughter," Hillyer told her, "you are everything in the world I could hope for. As a daughter, Toby, you are eminently a success. In the last weeks I have come to know you better, I believe, than many a father who has lived in the same house with his daughter all her life."

Toby said, as she had before, "My own father—my own real father—!"

"We've missed a lot," Hillyer told her, "but we have a great deal ahead of us, too. We'll have to make plans together. I've made some of my own, but perhaps you can improve on them."

They talked for half an hour longer. Suddenly Toby said, "Father—look! Everyone else has gone. We're the only ones left!"

Hillyer glanced about the room. Except for themselves, the dining room was deserted. Weary-looking waiters were eying them from a distance. "So we are," Hillyer said. "Well, we'll have to fix that—"

He dug into his pocket for a tip, then turned to Toby, beaming. "Do you know what you said?" he asked. "You called me 'Father.' I've been a father for 19 years and this is the first time I've ever been called that!"

Rowe Wins His Second Shut-Out

"Schoolboy" Puts Detroit Back in "Win" Column, 5 to 0

DETROIT, Mich.—(AP)—Schoolboy Rowe pitched Detroit back into the "win" column Sunday with a five-hit, 5-to-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox, his second successive shutout of the season. He is the only Tiger pitcher to win a game thus far.

Goose Goslin hit the ball into the upper deck of the new rightfield grandstand in the sixth inning for a home run. Al Simmons and Marvin Owen got two hits apiece for the Tigers, while Hank Greenberg bounced the ball off the centerfield fence for a triple in the eighth inning.

A two-bagger by Mule Haas in the seventh inning was the first extra-base hit off Rowe this season. Luke Appling became the first opponent runner to pass first on Rowe this year when the reached second in the fifth inning on a bad throw to first by Manager Cochrane. Greenberg retrieved the ball and nipped Appling at third.

Monte Stratton allowed the Tigers seven hits in seven innings. He gave way to a pinch batter in the eighth and Clint Brown finished. Stratton fanned four men. Rowe struck out six.

The Tigers got two runs in the fifth on a pass to Goslin, a sacrifice by Fox, and singles by Owen, Rogell and Cochrane. After Goslin's sixth-inning homer, they got another in the seventh on Owen's single and Gehring's two-bagger. Greenberg's triple and Simmons' single accounted for the final run in the eighth.

The attendance was 22,107.

Jess Willard to Referee Bout Here

Outdoor Wrestling Program Thursday on South Walnut St.

Jess Willard, former heavyweight boxing champion of the world who knocked out Jack Johnson for the title in the 26th round of a fight in Havana, Cuba, April 5, 1915, comes to Hope Thursday night.

Big Jess will serve as referee in the opening outdoor wrestling show of the year at the new American Legion stadium, located one and a half blocks south of Highway 67 on South Walnut street.

Carpenters were at work Monday constructing the new stadium which will seat 1,000 persons. Ringside and bleacher seats are being installed.

For the formal opening of the new stadium Promoter Bert Mauldin has arranged an attractive card besides the appearance here of Willard.

In the opening event, Gil LaCrosse, the meanest of the meanies, is coming back. He has appeared here three times in recent weeks and his tactics get into the fan's hair.

Promoter Mauldin said the best man available had been matched with LaCrosse. He is Leslie Wolf of Sherman, Texas. They appear in the 45-minute semi-final.

In the feature event Tools Estes of Elk City, Okla., and Paddy Nolan of Kansas, are scheduled to tangle in a bout based on two out of three falls with a two-hour time limit.

His mistress, 16-year-old Elizabeth Stinson, nursed him through a serious illness once. So when she came down with appendicitis, he tried to respond in kind.

He sat outside the hospital door in darkness and in sunshine, in snow and bitter cold. Nurses persuaded him to eat after a few days, but he showed little interest in food.

When Elizabeth was wheeled out to her home, Fritz leaped joyfully on the stretcher. He yelped all the way home behind the ambulance. At home he took up guard at her bedside.

Petticoat Fever Hits '36 Fashions

Touch of the Gay '90's Reflected in Women's Garments

By ADELAIDE KERR Associated Press Correspondent

NEW YORK—(AP)—Petticoat fever has swept the fashion world. The frivolous, frothy underskirts introduced with a few of the smartest frocks this spring started a vogue so contagious that half the new dresses are now being worn with petticoats which recall the fashions of grandmother's day.

Green, coral and hyacinth taffeta swishes under dark day street frocks. Striped or checked silk rustles under black dressmaker suits and white pique petticoats are worn with the dotted taffeta afternoon suits. Some of the underskirts even show an inch or two below the hem of the frock.

The fever of enthusiasm for petticoats mounts almost as high at night. Some of the smartest flowered crepe gowns are worn with pastel colored petticoats of silk net whose plaited frills peep out beneath the hem.

Others have net dust ruffles fastened to a depth of six or eight inches inside the hem, giving the effect of frilly petticoats.

Since many petticoats have no tops the old fashioned canopies have come back, many women wearing them under the sheer mousseline blouses which accompany their taffeta cocktail and dance suits.

Other old fashioned fancies also have crept into the mode. The Gibson Girl hat and polka dotted veils which mother used to wear are reflected in bristly little sailors worn with a 1936 tilt over one eye and in sheer black veils spattered with as many vaticolored confetti dots. These generally are draped in a ribbon-like effect around the crown, ending in a bright chou in the back or front.

The full topped sleeves seen in a number of taffeta and cravat silk suits, and the vogue for mauve, which is much in the picture this Spring, likewise recall the fashions of the "mauve decade."

Accessories hint of the gay nineties, too. Rose quartz hearts with black heads silhouetted in the center are favored as brooches. Little bob watches recall the chateleine timepieces of years ago.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our many friends and neighbors for their kindness shown to us in the saddest hours of our life when our husband and father, Frank Hutchens, passed away at his home in this city, April 16 also for the beautiful floral offerings.

William Frank Hutchens was born July 17, 1882 in Union county, Ark., the son of James Wiley and Mandy Hutchens. While a small boy he moved with his parents to Hempstead county near Columbus where he grew to manhood. In August 1900 he was married to Cora Lively. A year later he moved to Hope, which remained the family home until his health failed. He departed this life at 3:55 on the morning of April 16, 1936 at the age of 53 years.

He leaves to mourn his passing his widow, one son William Frank Jr., of Houston, Texas, two daughters, Mrs. C. C. Chaney and Abby Hutchens of Hope, Arkansas, a sister Mrs. Autrey Hollingsworth of Longview, Texas, a niece Miss Mary McCorkle, and C. C. Chaney the husband of his daughter Virginia, and two grandchildren and other relatives and many friends. He was a loving husband and a kind father. In his young manhood he gave his heart and life into the keeping of the Great Master and united with the Baptist church of which he remained a faithful member until death. Life was never easy for him but through the vicissitudes of fortune he fought a good fight. He met sorrow with faith, disappointment with hope, and misfortune with fortitude. A stalwart Christian, his hope was in God and his comfort in his Holy Word.

Now that the Eternal Father has decreed that he has suffered enough, and released his immortal soul to join his loved ones in the home of everlasting peace there remains to those who survive much to contemplate with tenderness and no act to regret. Through all his life he did the best he could. It is well that he lived.

Mrs. Frank Hutchens Miss Abby Hutchens William Hutchens Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Chaney Mary McCorkle.

Admits Kidnaping of Paul Wendel

Suspect Confesses He Was One of Three Who Tortured Him

NEW YORK—Paul H. Wendel's fantastic story of being kidnaped and tortured into "confessing" the Lindbergh kidnaping-murder was confirmed Sunday night, Martin Schlossman confessed shortly after 10 p. m. that he was one of three men who snatched the disbarred lawyer and took him to a Sheepshead Bay house where, for 10 days, he was subjected to painful treatment which resulted in the false confession.

Schlossman's confession followed a day of persistent grilling by District Attorney William F. X. Geoghan, aided by Wendel. It was Wendel's oft-repeated descriptions of the torture chamber that finally forced Schlossman to admit his guilt, the prosecutor said. Geoghan announced Schlossman would be booked for kidnaping.

After Schlossman's statement had been taken down by police stenographers, Geoghan sent home Schlossman's wife, Fay, and her brother, Sidney Bleefeld, who also underwent long questioning. It was said they probably would be called as witnesses before the grand jury.

The announcement concerning Schlossman followed a disclosure that four detectives chartered a plane Sunday afternoon and flew to Detroit to pick up two fugitives in the case. They are Murray Bleefeld, brother of Mrs. Schlossman, and Harry Weiss, also of Brooklyn, identified by Wendel from photographs as his jailers. In his statement, as released by Geoghan, Schlossman admitted he was the driver of the sedan in which Wendel was spirited from Manhattan to Brooklyn.

Schlossman was quoted as admitting also that he helped construct a rude torture tent in which Wendel was kept chained during a great part of his captivity. But he denied taking part in the torture.
